These JEP Reflective Questions are designed to help you reflect upon your experiences as a member of a mini-team so that you can make the most of your community teaching experiences. Throughout the course of the semester, you will observe and participate in the daily activities of those you meet at your JEP site, and you will write about your experiences on a regular basis. These JEP Reflective Questions are designed to help you focus your observations and critically reflect on your experiences so that you can make the most of your service-learning assignment.

REFLECTIVE QUESTION HINTS:

1. Read the questions first. Reading the question before you go to your JEP site is required in order to answer many RQs and having the questions on your mind will when at your site will help focus your observations and improve your response to all RQS.
2. Take notes. As soon as possible after leaving your site, take a few minutes to quickly write down a few notes about your experience that day—difficult moments, things that surprised you, highlights from teaching, etc. Taking a few minutes to do this each week will save you time later and will provide the examples and observations you need to write an outstanding essay.
3. Proof your work. Like any college-level writing assignment, proof your work to make sure the writing is clear, error-free, and that you answer the question at hand.
4. Read and respond to your PA's comments. The questions are related to and build upon one other. So refer back to previous responses and to take seriously your PA’s feedback each week and respond to the feedback by following the PAs suggestions.
5. Be respectful. Show your respect by being mindful of the limits of your experience and knowledge. Avoid generalizations and psychological explanations of behavior; in other words, do not make arguments that assume you know how someone else thinks or feels or use these assumptions to explain the way people act or their circumstances.
6. Use examples. Focus on writing detailed and concrete accounts of people, social settings and conversations (including direct quotes, when possible). Never make claims without evidence or examples!

YOUR WEEKLY ASSIGNMENTS
The core parts of each Reflective Question (which you need to focus on) are highlighted in bold. Use the additional parts of the question to guide/supplement your answer. Please refer to the PA Agreement you received in training for instructions regarding due dates and format requirements. Note that some weeks require longer responses and are worth more points.
ESSAY ONE: Pre-Reflection Assignment (1 page, 10 points, due: 2/14/2011)

Please respond to one of the following prompts. The second set of questions is for returning volunteers only.

#1: Over the next eight-weeks you will be taking your college education outside of the walls of the University. Based on what you know about JEP and what you know about your site, what do you imagine your JEP experience will be like? (For more information about the Art of Living, visit the organization’s website: http://us.yesplus.org) Make sure to explain why you think what you think and use examples from your experiences at USC and in the community to explain yourself. Make your imagined vision of your JEP experience specific by addressing these two questions: Ideally, what would you like to learn from your experiences in JEP? When you think about JEP, what makes you the most nervous or concerned?

#2: Think back to your last experience in JEP and think about how you can take what you’ve learned about JEP, USC and the surrounding neighborhood, or the organization or school you worked with and improve your experience this time around. Now that you know something about how JEP works, what do you hope to learn from doing JEP again? How do you imagine your work with the Art of Living will make your new and different this semester? What was the biggest obstacle you faced in your last JEP experience and how will you address that issue this time? Make sure to use clear and detailed examples from your last JEP experience to explain your reasoning.

ESSAY TWO: Assessing your Plan (1.5-2 pages, 15 points, due: 2/21/2011)

Consider the eight-week curriculum you will be teaching with your mini-team. How does it relate to the contents of your PSYC 201 course? How do you think this curriculum will convey what you are learning through The Science of Happiness and the Art of Living to your students? What are your teaching goals? What are some of the challenges you expect over the coming weeks? What strategies will you use to overcome these challenges?

ESSAY THREE – The Team (1 page, 10 points, due: 3/7/2011)

Describe your impressions of your mini-course team. How well are you gelling as a team? What strengths do you think each member brings to the table? What weaknesses are you concerned about, if any? How do you think about your own roll in the team? That is, what strengths and weaknesses do you bring and what skills would you like to develop?

ESSAY FOUR – The Local Role of JEP and Art of Living Foundation (2 pages, 20 points, due: 3/21/2011)

Explore the Art of Living website (http://us.yesplus.org) to find more information about the organization and its programs. What is the Art of Living’s mission? What are some of the Art of Living’s goals? What types of programs does the organization operate both in the US and abroad? What programs do they operate in Los Angeles? Now explore the JEP website (www.usc.edu/jep) and consider the ways in which the Art of Living’s mission might overlap with JEP’s? Do JEP and Art of Living have similar goals for the community? Finally, how does your assignment align with both the Art of Living’s goals and JEP’s goals?

In your PSYC 201 class you are exploring the science of what makes people happy. You particularly discussed reaching “happiness from within” and the benefits of meditation. Along the same lines, the practice of yoga has been associated with a number of psychological benefits including, but not limited to, anxiety diminution, mood improvement and increased wellbeing. The Art of Living Foundation is an advocate of meditation as a way to achieve not only “peace in me,” but also “peace on earth” (http://us.artofliving.org/). In fact, Sri Sri Ravi Shankar, founder of the Art of Living, posits that, “if everybody in the world lives in the present moment, if we are able to accept people as they are, there will be no problems, no strife.”

Consider these statements in light of your PSYC readings and in the context of your JEP assignment. Have you witnessed any changes in your students’ attitude toward yoga and meditation? Do you think your intervention at your JEP site contributes not only to the wellbeing of your students, but also to the wellbeing of the larger community (yourself included)? If so, how? If not, why not?

ESSAY SIX – Town and Gown: Students and Community (1.5-2 pages, 15 points, due: 4/11/2011)

Please choose one of the two options below:

Option 1 – Your role in the community

USC’s master plan (http://www.usc.edu/community/upcmasterplan/) lays out USC’s vision for developing the area surround the University Park Campus. Students are not mentioned in the majority of the plan save for the section on “community outreach:”

Throughout its 125-year history, USC has put high value on being a good neighbor—and on programs and projects that have a positive and visible impact on its neighborhoods. In his 1991 inaugural address, USC President Steven B. Sample spelled out his vision of the urban university, where traditional boundaries between university and community become blurred and permeable, and students have the opportunity to be active participants in the interchange.

As a result, USC has come together with local residents in one of the most ambitious social-outreach programs of any university in the nation. This culturally diverse, living laboratory of community collaboration reveals itself in more than 300 academic and professional programs that address educational, cultural, economic and safety issues in the local communities—and which earned USC the distinction of College of the Year 2000 from Time magazine and The Princeton Review. http://www.usc.edu/community/upcmasterplan/http://www.usc.edu/about/core_documents/role_and_mission_of_usc.htmhttp://www.usc.edu/about/core_documents/role_and_mission_of_usc.html

Strategic Actions for a Just Economy (SAJE) presents a different opinion on the role of students in the community (full article: http://bit.ly/fUd7tJ):
"Students today aren’t going to be here when any of the master plan is implemented, but these people in the community - they live here, and they’re raising their kids here, and they want to retire here."

The UPC Master Plan is a general outline for redevelopment that would provide thousands of new beds in housing complexes, construct new academic buildings and lure high-end retailers and restaurants over the next two decades.

[SAJE staff] and others want to see a commitment to building affordable housing and funding real community improvement alongside plans for expansion and a promise that new retailers will serve both the school and the community.

Consider the contrasting perspectives above as you answer the following questions. Do you think your participation in a program like JEP serves USC’s greater goals? If so, be specific about how these goals are served. If not, be specific about why not. Next, do you think USC’s goals serve the community? Again, make sure to explain why you think what you think. Finally, based on your experiences in JEP, what roles and responsibilities do you think USC students should have as residents of the neighborhood and/or as students of the University? Take a look back at the essays you have written (make sure to use Blackboard, so you can see your PA’s comments), and think about what you have learned over the past few weeks. Use any experiences you have had at your JEP site and in the community (with JEP or in any other capacity) that have changed your understanding of your role as a college student and as a resident of this neighborhood and city in your answer. (If you live outside of the university community, reflect generally on the roles and responsibilities you think that college students do have and should have to their city and neighborhoods in which a university resides.) (If you have not had any experiences that have shifted your thinking about the role and responsibilities of University students in regards to any of these issues, explain why you think you have never had any such experience.)

If you've participated in JEP before: you may also include your thoughts on how your current JEP assignment differs, complements or reinforces what you learned from your previous JEP experience(s).

Option 2 - Benefits of Service-Learning for Students

In addition to potentially providing beneficial services for the communities in which it is implemented, service-learning is also credited with numerous benefits for the participating students. In particular:

1. Young people gain access to the range of supports and opportunities (or developmental assets) they need to grow up healthy, caring, and responsible. One study of youth civic activism found that these settings had particular strength in cultivating youth and community involvement (Lewis-Charp et al., 2003).
2. Increased sense of self-efficacy as young people learn that they can impact real social challenges, problems, and needs.
3. Higher academic achievement and interest in furthering their education.
4. Enhanced problem-solving skills, ability to work in teams, and planning abilities.
5. Enhanced civic engagement attitudes, skills and behaviors. Many leaders in public service today speak about how they were nurtured, inspired, and shaped in early experiences in community service or volunteering.

(Chung, 1997; Coe-Regan et al, in press; Lewis-Charp et al., 2003; Tannenbaum, S. C., 2007; and YMCA of the USA, 2004)

Consider these benefits and reflect on the various ways in which your JEP experience has impacted you this semester. Based on your personal experience, do you believe that the above-mentioned benefits can come from participating in a service-learning program? Which outcomes seem most likely for service-learning students? Which seem least likely? Are there other benefits that you have experienced that are not listed above? In answering these questions, make sure to explain your reasoning and use specific examples from your service-learning assignment and your course.

Take a look back at the essays you have written (make sure to use Blackboard, so you can see your PA’s comments), and think about what you have learned over the past few weeks. As noted in the assignment for Essay #6 (Option 2), one of the benefits of service-learning for participating students is “higher academic achievement.” For this final essay, we want you to focus on this particular outcome vis a vis your JEP assignment. First, consider the premise itself: how does participating in a service-learning program lead to higher academic achievement? When does it fail to do so? Do students’ outcomes vary by the subject matter of the course? Or do they vary by their experiences in the community? Describe what you think are the most important factors in a service-learning assignment that ensure “higher academic achievement” for university students.

Next, think about your JEP experiences in the context of your USC course: What is the most significant “academic” outcome of your JEP assignment? How has JEP affected your understanding of the course content? Why do you think your professor is giving academic credit for JEP? What are his or her goals for you? In answering these questions, make sure to use specific examples from your course. Think broadly about the relationship between JEP and your course. Even if you believe there is no direct connection, consider how you could apply a course concept to help better understand or explain something you encounter in your JEP experience. You might focus on detailing a specific learning outcome (e.g., describing a particular theory and how it came to life through your experiences, or how teaching helped you to understand a particular course concept). Alternatively, you might reflect on how your experiences in JEP shed light on material you have learned in other courses at USC.

The goal of this assignment is for you to think critically about the academic outcomes of service-learning and describe what you learned from your experience. If you are struggling to make the connection, as an alternative, explain, in detail, how you think the course or JEP could be redesigned to foster a more meaningful connection between your course and a service-learning experience in the community.
