A Few Words to Employers

1. Give them real work!
   Our interns would really like to learn. They would devote their time and effort if you challenge their potentials.

2. Do what you say and Say what you do.
   You are someone that our interns look up to. The promise you make is something they look forward to. When you promise something, make sure you remember.

3. They like feedback.
   Our interns are not experienced in the field. When they make mistakes, please do let them know how they can improve.

4. They want to be included, too.
   Our interns want to be part of your team. Create an atmosphere so they feel they belong.

5. Please explain!
   When you give assignments, please take time to explain and make sure they understand. Some tasks that may be intuitive and self-explanatory to you may turn out to be complex and counter-intuitive to our interns.

6. They want a mentor.
   If the supervisor is busy, please consider a mentor who can be more readily available to provide help when our interns have questions.

7. A minute of your time, please.
   Our interns would love to interact with you when you are available at work.

8. Be prepared!
   Please let other people at your company know that you are taking an intern so that they are not being treated as strangers when they show up at work.

9. Um, I need a chair.
   Our interns would certainly appreciate a comfortable space at the workplace so they can be more efficient and effective.
