University of Southern California
Non-Tenure-Track Teaching Positions, East Asian Languages and Cultures

The Department of East Asian Languages and Cultures in the Dana and David Dornsife College of Letters, Arts and Sciences at the University of Southern California in Los Angeles, California, may have one or more non-tenure-track faculty openings in the 2012-2013 academic year for teaching positions in literature, culture, or language, full-time or part-time.

The Department of East Asian Languages and Cultures provides students with a well-rounded education on East Asia by focusing on the study of the languages, literatures, and cultures of China, Japan and Korea at both the graduate (Ph.D.) and undergraduate (B.A.) level.

Applicants should have an M.A. or Ph.D. in relevant field of study. For applicants to the position of language lecturer, evidence of commitment to dynamic and effective language teaching is essential. Experience with computer-assisted instruction and language instructional software is a plus. Salary and benefits are competitive.

Please submit application letter, curriculum vitae, statement of teaching interests, teaching evaluations, and three recommendation letters. Applicants to the position of language lecturer should also include a sample teaching video (preferably two levels, such as basic and intermediate or basic and advanced level classes), and have at least one recommendation letter that speaks to their teaching abilities. All application materials should be submitted to:
