This course offers a fresh perspective on contemporary Italy, particularly from its young generation. Students will improve their oral communication skills while exploring trends and habits of Italian youth. Journalistic articles, songs, film, and a variety of other media will be used extensively in class. Class activities and assignments will give students the opportunity to develop further their oral proficiency skills.

Requirements include a variety of presentations, role-plays, and creative and collaborative projects.

Prerequisite: ITA 220 or permission of the instructor.
