Welcome to the Department of English. For the Summer 2017 semester, we offer a select number of courses in English and American literature and culture and creative writing. Please feel free to speak with any faculty in the English department, with one of our undergraduate program coordinators, or with Professor Lawrence D. Green, our Director of Undergraduate Studies, to help you select the courses that are right for you.

All Department of English courses are “R” (open registration) courses, except for the following “D” course, which requires departmental clearance: ENGL-302. Departmental clearance is not required for “R” course registration prior to the beginning of the semester, but is required for “D” course registration. On the first day of classes all classes will be closed—admission is granted only by the instructor’s signature and the department stamp (available in THH 404).

Be sure to check the class numbers (e.g., 32734R) and class hours against the official Summer 2017 Schedule of Classes at classes.usc.edu.

Online registration for the Summer 2017 semester will begin Monday, March 6, 2017. Students should check for any holds on their account that will prevent them from registering at this time.

All courses for the Summer 2017 semester in the ENGL department are 4.0 units.

ENGL-176g  Los Angeles: the City, the Novel, the Movie
GUSTAFSON, THOMAS
TTh | 9a.m.-12:20p.m.
SECTION: 32876
Los Angeles has been mocked as a city 500 miles wide and two inches deep. It is famous for its movies and music, but critics claim that it lacks cultural depth. This course seeks to prove otherwise. The region of Southern California has a remarkably rich literary heritage extending deep into its past, and over the past two decades, Los Angeles has become a pre-eminent center of literary creativity in the United States, the home of a new generation of writers whose work address questions and concerns of special significance as we confront the problems of 21st century urban America including environmental crises, social inequality, and problems associated with uprootedness, materialism and racism and ethnic conflict. Study of the history and the storytelling through literature and film of this region can help perform one of the vital roles of education in a democracy and in this city famous for its fragmentation and the seductive allure of the image: It can teach us to listen more carefully to the rich mix of voices that compose the vox populi of Los Angeles, and thus it can help create a deeper, broader sense of our common ground. Texts for the course will include literature by such writers as Anna Deavere Smith, Budd Schulberg, Nathanael West, Karen Yamashita, Christopher Isherwood, Yxta Maya Murray, Luis Rodriguez, Walter Mosley and Joan Didion and such films as Chinatown, Sullivan’s Travels, Singin’ in the Rain, and Quinceanera.

ENGL-302  Writing Narrative
ULIN, DAVID
TTh | 1-3:50p.m.
SECTION: 32622
How do we write about the world? What is the balance between memory and imagination, between truth and the creativity required for art? These are the key questions faced by every writer of narrative, and they will be at the center of our work throughout this class. Although primarily a workshop—and it is the instructor’s intention that each student have the opportunity to be workshopped twice during the summer session—the class will also use select assigned readings to frame a discussion of the larger issues involved in narrative writing, from structure and point-of-view to empathy and betrayal, as well as the essential tension between facts and interpretation, and the inherent subjectivity of the stories we tell. Students will write one piece of fiction and one of nonfiction, each of 8-10 pages in length. Our discussions will include a consideration of genre and how (or whether) it is important, especially in regard to an imaginative sensibility. For this reason, we will also spend some time looking at narrative poetry, to get a sense of how the genres talk to one another, the ways in which they overlap.

ENGL-430  Shakespeare
TOMAINI, THEA
TTh | 9-11:50a.m.
SECTION: 32862
This course will focus on Shakespeare’s histories and tragedies. In our discussion of these plays we will pay special attention to the ideals of kingship and nobility, and of dynastic politics during the middle ages and/or Roman imperial era (when the plays take place) and the Elizabethan and Jacobean eras (when the plays were performed). Plays will include King John, Richard II, Henry IV, Parts I and II, Henry V, Richard III, Macbeth, Hamlet, Julius Caesar, Antony and Cleopatra, Titus Andronicus, and King Lear. In addition, we will discuss the legacy of Shakespeare in English and American culture from the 17th century to the present. Text: Greenblatt, et al., eds. The Norton Shakespeare, 2nd edition. New York: WW. Norton & Co., 2008. Comparable editions to Shakespeare’s plays are also acceptable. Other texts TBA. Handouts: TBA. There will be three papers, 8-10 pps each.

⇒ D-clearance required.
ENGL-451

Periods and Genres in American Literature

“Wastelands and Apocalypses in Modern and Contemporary American Poetry”

BENDALL, MOLLY

TWTh | 1-3:50p.m.

SECTION: 32736

Civilizations facing ruin from post-war destruction, environmental collapse, societal upheaval, and other catastrophic events are conditions we have seen in film, novels, visual art, and graphic novels. Modern poetry and contemporary books of poetry have also been compelled to depict these devastations. In this class we will discuss particular contemporary poetry texts, analyzing how a poetic consciousness navigates these particular worlds—both real and imagined ones—and how strategies, and formal constructs, such as fragmentation, appropriation, and multiple voices contribute to a poem’s vision. We’ll read poems by Eliot, Stevens, and Frost, as well as, contemporary books of poems: The Black Ocean by Brian Barker, Cold Pastoral by Rebecca Dunham, If Tabloids are True then What Are You? by Matthea Harvey, Notes for the Last Days, by Meghan Privitello, and other texts. 3 papers, short responses, a creative assignment, and much participation.
Courses that satisfy major and minor requirements

Courses not listed here may not satisfy category requirements, but usually qualify as upper-division electives for English Literature and Creative Writing.

Pay attention to pre-requisites, co-requisites, and special permissions.

You cannot go “backwards” in sequences and get credit for courses taken out of order, per the USC Catalogue.

Check these requirements against your STARS report and the information in the USC Catalogue.

Courses that require departmental clearance

* It is your responsibility to request d-clearance.
* D-clearance is not automatically granted to all English and Narrative Studies majors for ENGL classes. It is granted on a per-student, per-section basis.
* Spaces are assigned to students prior to registration. It may appear that there are spaces available on the Schedule of Classes, even though those spaces have already been assigned.
* Be sure to indicate which section (this is the five-digit number ending in “D”) you’d like d-clearance for during advisement.
