

SPECIAL PRESENTATION

The Jesse M Unruh Institute of Politics is pleased to invite you to:

REDEFINING AMERICA:
KEY FINDINGS FROM THE 2006
LATINO NATIONAL SURVEY

PRESENTED BY:

LUIS R. FRAGA

University of Washington

JOHN A. GARCIA

University of Arizona

and

GARY M. SEGURA

University of Washington

With Latinos in the United States now making up 13 percent of the population and over 33 percent in California, the recently conducted Latino National Survey provides an opportunity to identify trends and dynamics at work among this complex and diverse ethnic population. With 8,600 respondents in 15 states and the DC metro area, the LNS represents the largest survey of its kind, allowing detailed analysis by national origin, generation, state and metro area including the San Francisco Bay Area.

This first public presentation of these results in Southern California will focus on findings in key issues impacting Latinos in the United States today: immigration, questions of immigrant assimilation, Latino ethnic identity and race relations, immigration policy and partisanship.

THIS IS A FREE PUBLIC EVENT, HOWEVER YOUR
RSVP IS REQUIRED.
PLEASE REPLY TO:

unruhinst@usc.edu

OR BY PHONE

(213) 740-8964

MONDAY, MARCH 4 2008
1000 : AM 2 00P.M.
UNIVERSITY OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA
RALPH AND GOLDY
LEWIS HALL, ROOM 101

650 Childs Way
Los Angeles, California 90089

Jesse M. Unruh
Institute of Politics

Co-sponsors:

Center for the Study of Los Angeles
at Loyola Marymount University; Tomás Rivera Policy Institute;
Pat Brown Institute of Public Affairs at California State University, Los Angeles