The Master’s in Applied Psychology Program gives our students the tools to apply psychology and research methods to any field of business.

How does MAPP provide students with an edge in the job market?

The Master's in Applied Psychology Program gives our students the tools to apply psychology and research methods to any field of business, so that they walk out the door with skills that they can directly talk to a prospective employer about—skills that those employers want and need.