Hélène Sanguinetti and Ann Cefola

HENCE THIS CRADLE

A reading followed by a conversation with the author
and the translator

Hosted by David Lloyd

April, 17 2007
4H00 PM
Richard S. Idle Memorial
Commons Room
THH 420

Francophone Resource Center

Francophone Resource Center
University of Southern California
Doheny Memorial Library, 107
Los Angeles, California 90089-1823
tel: (213) 740 3703
Hélène Sanguinetti is the author of three books of poetry: Alparegho, Pareil-à-rien, D’ici, ce berceau, and De la main gauche, exploratrice. Her work has appeared in several anthologies, most recently in 49 poètes and l’Année Poétique 2005. Recently, she collaborated with Anna Baranek on an artist’s book, Ô III. Hence This Cradle, Ann Cefola’s translation of D’Ici, ce berceau, is Sanguinetti’s first book to appear in English.

She lives in Provence.

Ann Cefola’s translations have appeared in Circumference, Mantis and Rhino.

Dancing Girl Press recently published her chapbook, Sugaring.

In 2001, she won the Robert Penn Warren Award judged by John Ashbery.

Cefola lives in Scarsdale, New York and works as a creative strategist with her own company, Jumpstart LLC.

With Hence This Cradle, Hélène Sanguinetti blends the fairytale world of childhood with the sensual world of the adult in a sequence of poetic fragments that fuse the innocent and intimate in a single lyric voice.

Otis Books/Seismicity Editions recently published Ann Cefola’s translation from the French.