Visual History: The Past in Pictures
WORKSHOP 3: THE 18TH CENTURY
Monday, February 27, 2017 | DML 241 | 3:30-6pm

DARRIN MCMAHON, Dartmouth College
“Illuminating Time: History and Historicity in the Age of Enlightenment”

ANDREW SCHULZ, Pennsylvania State University
“Exoticism and Nationalism in Eighteenth-Century Visual Culture”

SUSAN SIEGFRIED, University of Michigan
“Visual Compilations and Visual Histories in the Eighteenth Century”

http://mellonsawyervisualhistory.vsri.org/

Images make history. They document events, preserve memories, allow us to witness at a distance, and move us to act. Images can serve as both records and sources for the writing of history. With funding from the Mellon Foundation Sawyer Seminar program, this series of workshops investigates the history of “writing” history in images from the rise of print culture ca. 1450 to the global spread of digital media in the present, with an emphasis on the Western tradition and experience, including its imperial contexts. By investigating the many ways in which histories have been told with and in images, we aim to contextualize the current ubiquity of visually mediated evidence, documentation, and narrative as well as consider the possibility of a scholarly practice that integrates the visualization of our own scholarly analyses.

Directors: Daniela Bleichmar and Vanessa Schwartz
Visual Studies Research Institute, University of Southern California

The seminar meetings are open to members of the scholarly public. Please RSVP to vsri@usc.edu for the sessions you would like to attend.