Joint Seminar

“Projections of Immigrant Generations, Growing Settlement, and Socioeconomic Progress”

Presented by Dowell Myers, PhD
Professor, Director of Population Dynamics Research Group, School of Policy, Planning, and Development

November 2, noon - 1 pm
UPC: Tutor Campus Center, Room 350
(Lunch provided - first come, first serve)

RSVP to lihualiu@usc.edu

The talk will highlight the newly released findings of the USC Population Dynamics Research Group, in conjunction with the Center for American Progress in Washington, D.C., and examine the rapidly changing structure of the foreign-born population in the United States. Political responses to the new projections and the implications for health care and health outcomes will also be addressed.
