Muslims and the Movement
Community Organizing for Immigrant Integration in America

As a diverse subset of the immigrant community in America, Muslims encounter and engage in a distinct set of social issues. While some have come as refugees from Somalia, others have come from places like Pakistan, entering the professional ranks and achieving upward mobility. Over the past 25 years, they have built strong organizations for Muslim incorporation into American public life, yet have less often used community organizing as a tool for social change. How do Muslims engage in movements seeking immigrant integration? Where do their issues overlap with broader social justice concerns? Join us as we explore what immigrant integration means for the Muslim American community.

The Center for the Study of Immigrant Integration (CSII) combines data analysis, academic scholarship and civic engagement to support improved economic mobility for, enhanced civic participation by, and receiving society openness to immigrants.

Wednesday, February 23, 2011
12:00 - 1:30 PM
Leavey Library Auditorium
University of Southern California

To RSVP and for more information please call (213) 740-3643 or email csii@usc.edu.

Panelists
- Shafiqa Ahmadi, J.D.
  Clinical Education, USC
- Rami Nashashibi
  Inner-City Muslim Action Network
- Tamia Pervez
  South Asian Network
- Naim Shah, Jr.
  LA Voice, ILM Foundation

Moderator
- Brie Loskota
  USC American Muslim Civic Leadership Institute

co-sponsored by:
- USC Campus and Community United
- USC Center for Religion and Civic Culture and American Muslim Civic Leadership Institute
- USC Muslim Student Union
- USC Office of Religious Life