Bridge Art + Science Alliance Trivia Night

By: Mrinal Nag

On November 17th, more than sixty people gathered at Tommy’s Place for an evening of Art & Science Trivia hosted by the Bridge Art + Science Alliance (BASA). The tavern-style auditorium was vibrant with energy as the participants settled in and waited for the games to begin. Attendees formed teams of around five participants each to answer questions ranging from general arts and sciences categories to Science Fiction. Although the opportunity to win amazing prizes was certainly alluring, it was clear that for most it was the opportunity to connect and have fun with talented individuals from the USC Arts and Sciences communities that was the major reward. The event was open to all, which created a diverse group of players and amplified the feeling of community. With upbeat music and lively ambiance, it was truly an event not to be missed.

This is just one of several events BASA has organized since their establishment in early 2016. Each event is inspired by the organization’s principal mission - developing lasting connections between the Arts and Science communities by cultivating a haven for discovery and creativity. As such, BASA produces media projects, hosts workshops, and organizes events to merge scientific discovery with the storytelling and spatial intelligence of the visual arts. Stay tuned for more events and opportunities for collaboration!
