Religion

This major explores religion on a global, transhistorical scale, from the cultural world of ancient Christianity to the portrayal of Buddhism in contemporary American cinema. The department views religious studies not so much as a discipline, but rather as a field of complex encounters, bringing multiple perspectives — history, sociology, cultural studies, anthropology, and textual analysis — to bear on a wide range of religious traditions and practices.

BACHELOR OF ARTS (BA) REQUIREMENTS OVERVIEW

Two Core Courses
- Introduction to the Study of Religion
- Seminar in Religious Studies

Six Electives, see examples below:
- Origins of Western Religions
- Introduction to Buddhism
- Chinese Religions and Cultures
- Introduction to Christianity
- Sense and Sensuality in Indian Religions and Culture
- Anti-Semitism, Racism, and Other Hatreds
- Sex and the Bible: Gender, Sexuality, and Scripture
- Religions and Human Rights
- Religion and Science
- Religious Experience in the Greco-Roman World
- Women and the Islamic Tradition
- Buddhist Modernism
- Religion and Violence
- Sociology of Religion
- Religion and Popular Culture in the United States

EXPERIENTIAL OPPORTUNITIES

- Directed Research: Students are individually mentored by a faculty member in the Center for Religion and Civic Culture, the Casden Institute for the Jewish Role in American Life, or the USC Archaeology Research Center.

- Study Abroad: With the School of Religion’s global approach, it’s no surprise that students have a diverse array of foreign settings in which to study. Explore Islam in Amman, ancient Greek mythology in Athens, or religion and philosophy in Tokyo.

- World-Class Resources: Take advantage of USC’s own Institute for Advanced Catholic Studies, the Omar Ibn Al Khattab Foundation, the West Semitic Research Project, and the InscriptiFact Project.

For additional information, including all major requirements, please consult the USC Catalogue or http://dornsife.usc.edu/religion/http-dornsife-usc-edu-religion/