A number of Jerry Davison's former students both here and at Stony Brook have established a fund in honor of his contributions as a research advisor, clinical instructor, and mentor:

The Gerald C. Davison Award for Excellence in Exemplifying the Boulder Model will be given annually to a student in the USC Clinical Science program who has made a superior contribution to applying psychological knowledge in their clinical work. An example would be the design and implementation of a therapeutic intervention based on empirical research and demonstrating the way the implementation of principles of change must entail a translation that includes an idiographic analysis of a single case.

Steve Lopez will be appointing a committee to judge who will be the first awardee at the end of this academic year.

Congratulations Addie!

Addie received a 2015 APA American Psychological Association Dissertation Research Award for her dissertation project titled: Romantic Partners’ Physiological and Emotional Coregulation in the Home Environment

The Basic Psychological Science Research Grant

The Basic Psychological Science Research Grant provides $1000 grants to graduate students conducting research studies. Students in clinical, counseling and school programs ARE eligible to apply for this grant. This grant is open to all APAGS members who are current graduate students!

Diversity research - In addition, APAGS will fund an additional 3 grants for $1000 each to fund diversity related projects if you apply for the Basic Psychological Science Grant. Only one extra document of 250 words describing how your research applies to one or more areas of diversity is required (in addition to the application for the BPSG).

Deadline to apply: December 2, 2015 at 11:59PM (ET)
