I am very excited to be at USC as a student, working close to family, the beach, and the mountains. I studied psychology and creative writing at Northwestern University and have had the pleasure of working at USC and UCLA the past few years. As a student, I will be focusing on the daily processes of couples and the implications for public health. In my free time, I love to hike, eat good food, and enjoy good company.

I graduated from UCLA in 2015 with a bachelor’s in psychology. After finishing my BA, I worked for two years as a research coordinator in an NIH research lab based in Detroit, MI. At USC, I look forward to further investigating early life neurobehavioral development as well as psychobiological factors associated with transition to parenthood. I love cloudy skies and rainy weather. On sunny days, I prefer to enjoy the great indoors and I am a huge fan of sci-fi/fantasy, video games, and food.

Growing up in the Midwest, and having spent the last two years on the east coast, I’m excited to see what the west coast has in store! I completed my undergraduate degree at the University of Minnesota, graduating with majors in Child Psychology and Genetics. Broadly, I am interested in studying early life risks and protective factors impacting child development. I developed this interest while doing research in college, and continued to build on it over the last few years while studying perinatal risks in medical research settings like the Neonatal Intensive Care Unit. In my free time, I love running, swimming, and practicing yoga. I also enjoy checking out farmers markets, rooftop restaurants, and cute coffee shops. I can’t wait to explore LA and would love suggestions to add to my LA to-do list.
