Postdoctoral Fellow in Aerospace History

The Huntington-USC Institute on California and the West (ICW) seeks applications from recent PhDs for a two-year postdoctoral fellowship in aerospace history, beginning in the fall of 2018. The Institute on California and the West is a research and teaching collaboration between the Huntington Library and the University of Southern California (www.usc.edu/icw).

The postdoctoral position will include research activities at the USC Dornsife College of Letters, Arts & Sciences. The postdoctoral fellowship is part of the Aerospace History Project, which is documenting the history of Southern California aerospace through archival collections and oral history. The project embraces a variety of scholarly perspectives, from technology to labor, social history, popular culture, and the environment. Fellows will pursue their own research and may capitalize on the project’s archival collections, and will also contribute to the project, in particular by assisting with the oral history program. Candidates should have a background in aerospace history; history of science and technology; history of California and the West; or relevant fields; experience with oral history is desirable. Candidates must have completed their PhD by June 2018. Fellows will be hired as University of Southern California employees and receive university benefits and a competitive salary.

To apply, please send a letter of application, c.v., thesis abstract, no more than two thesis chapters or articles, and the names and email addresses of two letter-writing references to

Professor William Deverell, Director

Huntington-USC Institute on California and the West

History Department

University of Southern California

MC 0034

Los Angeles, CA 90089-0034

Applications can come via mail or email. Review of completed applications will begin 1 April 2018. Inquiries may be sent to Professors Peter Westwick or William Deverell ([westwick@usc.edu; deverell@usc.edu](mailto:westwick@usc.edu; deverell@usc.edu))

The University of Southern California strongly values diversity and is committed to equal opportunity in employment. Women and men, and members of all racial and ethnic groups, are encouraged to apply.