WOMEN WRITE THE MEDITERRANEAN

A Transnational Symposium in Memory of ANNA MARIA ORTESE (1914-1998)

Organized by Lucia Re and Gian Maria Annovi

This symposium addresses the relationship between women writers and the Mediterranean, considered as a diverse region of interconnected histories and identities. It brings together scholars from different backgrounds to reflect on the possibility of a transnational critical conversation and dialogue about modern Mediterranean women writers such as Anna Maria Ortese, Malissa Bey, Leda Raffanelli, Nagwa Sha‘ban, and Etel Adnan, among others.

GIAN MARIA ANNOVI University of Southern California
ANDREA BALDI Rutgers University
BÉATRICE MOUSLI BENNETT University of Southern California
LIA BROZGAL University of California Los Angeles
CRISTINA DELLA COLETTA University of California San Diego
HALA HALIM New York University
OLIVIA HARRISON University of Southern California
GIL HOCHBERG University of California Los Angeles
LUCIA RE University of California Los Angeles
BARBARA SPACKMAN University of California Berkeley

THURSDAY, MARCH 5
3:00PM - 6:30PM
USC, DML 233

FRIDAY, MARCH 6
9:00AM - 1:00PM
UCLA, Royce 236

This event is FREE and open to the public. Info: annovi@usc.edu, or re@humnet.ucla.edu