STUDENTS TALK BACK
Brown Bag Lunch Series
Prop. 23:
The Battle Over Climate Change
Tues., Sept. 21st, 11:30am-1:00pm
(Program begins at 12:00 noon)
in the Fishbowl Chapel

(Free lunch will be served.)

In the wake of a bad economy, is California's commitment to the environment curbing job creation more than emissions? Or is reigning in global warming the only path to sustainable long-term growth? In 2006, Governor Schwarzenegger signed AB 32, a bill that supporters say will make California a world leader in the fight to slow global warming. Opponents contend that AB 32 stifles business and is a luxury we cannot afford with unemployment at such historic levels. California decides this November when we vote on Prop. 23, which, if passed, will suspend AB 32 until the state's unemployment rate drops below 5.5%. USC students and political experts come together to discuss whether AB 32 is a job creator or a job killer.

Panelists include Jonathan Wilcox, President of Multiplicity Media Productions; Kevin Murray, Former California State Senator and Assemblyman; and Yvette Ferrer, USC College Democrats; and Andreanna Hidalgo, Chair of USC Students for Meg Whitman. Comoderated by Matt King, Executive Vice-President of Derrell Associates, and Lucy Mueller, Managing Editor of the Daily Trojan.

STUDENTS TALK BACK is a weekly lunch series where USC students have the opportunity to discuss national and state politics with professional experts from the worlds of campaigns, government, policy, and journalism. Every Tuesday, we discuss an issue that dominates political debate in Washington and Sacramento. Students participate as panelists and analysts, and our guest experts answer questions and respond to comments from those in attendance.
