

An aerial photograph of Madrid, Spain, taken during the "golden hour" of sunset. The sky is a mix of deep blue and warm orange, with wispy white clouds. The city's architecture is visible, featuring multi-story buildings with balconies and ornate facades. A prominent curved building with classical architectural details is in the center. A wide street with traffic, including a red double-decker bus, runs through the scene. The word "MADRID" is superimposed in the center in large, bold, white letters with a black outline.
