Event Wrap: East Asia Career Panel

The fifth annual East Asia Career Panel was a great success! EASC welcomed USC Alumni Alandy Duverge, Jamie Hwang, Joseph Krassenstein and Emily Warren to speak to undergraduate and graduate students on their experience in the job market upon graduation and the impact East Asian language and area studies had on their careers. Each of the panelists also offered advice to students who are interested in careers related to East Asia. Students were invited to interact and network with the panelists about their career paths and study abroad experiences while at USC. This panel is a part of USC Career Fest 2017. A video of the panel is available: VIDEO | PHOTOS

Event Wrap: China's Circular Economy: From Problems to Progress - Prof. DU Huanzheng

Prof. DU Huanzheng, Professor at UNEP-Tongji Institute of Environment for Sustainable Development, spoke to students and faculty members on the evolution of China's focus on transitioning from an industrial, developing economy to a sustainable, eco-conscious economy by focusing on the micro and macro level policies and programs developed to address municipal solid waste and food waste in highly polluted areas of China. This event was co-sponsored by USC East Asian Studies Center and the History Department. PHOTOS
