EASC Awards 5 Academic Year FLAS Fellowships

Congratulations to EASC's 5 Foreign Language and Area Studies \(FLAS\) Fellows for academic year 2015-2016! Four undergraduates and one graduate student were awarded the U.S. Department of Education FLAS fellowship to study Chinese, Japanese or Korean language and area studies here at USC or abroad. Our Fellows come from a diverse range of majors and backgrounds and represent schools across the university.

Graduate Fellow

Stephanie Kang, Political Science and International Relations

Undergraduate Fellows

Margaret Harris, Linguistics and East Asian Languages and Cultures

Catherine Ji, Computer Engineering and Computer Science

Shalea Klepner, Cinematic Arts Critical Studies

Kelsey Quan, East Asian Area Studies

FLAS Fellowships are made possible by a U.S. Department of Education Title VI grant to enrich the nation's pool of area and international specialists.

Event Wrap: First Annual USC Workshop on East Asian Language Education

The First USC Workshop on East Asian Language Education was held on May 2. It proved to be a resounding success made possible by efforts and contributions from EASC, CET, CJRC, KSI, and TECO Education division. More than 60 K-16 language educators attended the event. During the workshop, meaningful professional dialogues across languages, levels, and settings were initiated. The workshop speakers and the audience had fruitful discussions on the best practices in implementing standards-based curriculum.
