2023 East Asia Career Panel

Wednesday, March 22 | 5:00PM-6:30PM | SOS B40 | RSVP

We are excited to announce that we will be resuming the East Asia Career Panel with its ninth installment! The East Asia Career Panel is an annual event EASC organizes and is open to all undergraduate and graduate students interested in using East Asian language and area studies skills in their future professions and learning about the different career options available. Our impressive alumni panelists come from East Asia-related professions in fields such as business consulting, entertainment, journalism, non-profit, marketing, and education. The panel will be followed by a Q&A and networking opportunity. See below for the panelists and their bios!

Roc Su

Roc is Head of Cultural Consulting at Gold House, a non-profit organization that elevates Asians and Pacific Islanders to lead and thrive in culture and commerce through unity, investment, and promotion. Roc graduated from USC with a dual B.A. in Cinematic Arts Critical Studies and Economics. During his time as an undergraduate, he worked for EASC as a student staff! After graduating, he supported internal strategy and ops at PwC's consulting business. In his current role, he works with partners to ensure respectful and authentic API storytelling in a variety of entertainment & media-focused fields.

Teresa Watanabe

Teresa is a staff writer for the Los Angeles Times. A Seattle native, she studied at Waseda University in Tokyo as an international student and graduated from USC in journalism and in East Asian languages and culture. After joining The Times in 1989, she served as Pacific Rim business reporter and Tokyo correspondent and bureau chief. She's also covered immigration, ethnic communities, religion and currently serves as a higher education reporter.

Tiara Wilson

Tiara is pursuing a PhD in East Asian Languages and Cultures at USC and is currently working on a research project focused on Sinophone hip hop. Originally from Aurora, Colorado, Tiara earned a BA in International Studies from the University of Denver in 2018 and a MA in East Asian Area Studies from USC in 2021. In addition to her academic pursuits, Tiara works as a consultant specializing in educating community organizations and businesses on relevant local social justice issues and methods of organizing.

East West Center in Washington Young Professional program

Deadline: March 12

The East-West Center in Washington (EWCW) offers a paid summer program for undergraduates, graduates, as well as recent graduates, to gain first-hand training experience at a US-Indo-Pacific research and education organization in Washington, DC.

The program is full-time with a $2,000 per month stipend, subject to applicable taxes and withholding. Stipends are prorated for part-time participation and may count as university credits if your school permits.

EWCW strive to provide participants with a broad range of education and training opportunities during their time with EWCW. These may include acquiring and analyzing large datasets for our Asia Matter for America publications, writing articles for AsiaMattersforAmerica.org, attending webinars or seminars, and delivering briefs.
