Upcoming Event

Shuddering Century: Modernist Poetry in Colonial Korea and the Poetics of Belatedness

Thursday, February 29 | 11:00AM - 12:20PM | ZHS 252 | RSVP

Join us for a talk with Kevin Shadel, Assistant Professor in East Asian Languages & Culture at UC Berkeley. This talk will survey the reception of the European avant-garde by Korean poets in the 1920s and 1930s under Japanese colonial rule. As Korea began to import modern literary styles from Western Europe, Korean writers and intellectuals took to questioning their position within a Eurocentric developmental chronology and status on the global literary stage. The lecture will highlight Korean poets such as Kim Ki-rim, O Chang-hwan, and Kim Kwang-kyun who simultaneously selected and combined a variety of modernist techniques to compose highly original and idiosyncratic works in both Korean and Japanese.

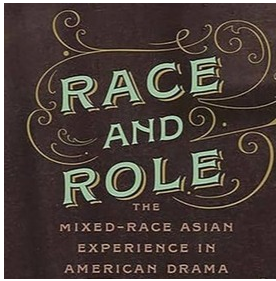

This event is presented by the Department of East Asian Languages and Culture and co-sponsored by the East Asian Studies Center, Shinso Ito Center for Japanese Religions and Culture, and Korean Heritage Library.
