SERVICE

National and USC-campuswide scholarly networks

2023- Director, Problem-Solving Ethnography

Problem-Solving Ethnography (PSE) is a new, US nationwide forum for ethnographic research on social problem solving. It is a component of Problem-Solving Sociology, a network of university researchers who use sociological insights to address social problems, advancing social theory at the same time. PSE will meet twice semesterly to discuss paper drafts, and host occasional specially-themed sessions. For more information and intellectual rationale, see: <https://sites.google.com/view/problemsolvingsociology/problem-solving-ethnography>

2016- Director, Ethnography of Public Life
2023

Ethnography of Public Life (EPL) was a workshop of grads, post-docs and faculty who use ethnographic research to study everyday settings, real or virtual, of civic and political life, public institutions or public spaces. Begun as a workshop largely for USC Sociology, EPL attracted attendees from across USC departments and several non-USC participants from Europe. We met to discuss paper drafts, four to six times a year. Occasional sessions were devoted to a presentation by a guest speaker from another university.
