What were this instructor's main strengths?

Comment

As well as teaching the material, he would also take a few minutes to teach interesting, related topics that we weren't tested on. Definitely enriched the class!

Enthusiastic about the subject.

very intelligent, ready and willing to help students, fair

Professor Lototsky articulated the material well and was very passionate about the subject.

Smart

Showed enthusiasm during lecture for mathematics.

He seems to know everything very well.

Really passionate

That he is a nice guy that does desire his students to succeed.

His enthusiasm

LECTURING

Organized, easy to access at Office Hours, always relates class material to real life applications

He is passionate about the course material and gives extracurricular activities that aim to show the beauty of math.

He would always go a step further than the course expectations and challenged us with questions to ponder about.

He is very passionate about maths and physics and encourage us to do many extra researches

He has great passion for mathematics and provides us a lot of extra knowledge.

How might this instructor improve his or her teaching effectiveness?

Comment

Make it a bit clearer that most homework, tests, and lectures follow his own textbook and not the official course textbook.

Maybe by actually teaching the subject material. EVERY TIME I attempted the homework, I asked myself, "when did we ever learn this?" The answer was ALWAYS, "we. never. did." I taught myself 100% of the course and stopped attending lecture because it was never relevant.

Do some more examples in class better explain difficult concepts, most students seemed lost a lot of the time to the point we didn't know what questions to ask when you opened up the floor

Professor Lototsky should go more slowly on hard topics. Sometimes i could not catch up.

More interesting and easy-understanding

Focus on teaching material that is actually relevant to course, rather than special topics that are not on the course syllabus. Provide examples of problems in lecture. Clearly explain the concepts of the class, rather than quickly going through them in an overly complicated manner.

He makes WAY too many mental jumps. More than half the class cannot follow what he is doing in lecture, and when he asks "any questions," we are often so confused that we don't even know what to ask. He may be intellectually smart, but he really has no people skills. During office hours, he just discourages "dumb questions" and never helps with actually how to get to an answer.

Get students more excited about math.

He could slow down and show how to do the math instead of just talking about the big concepts. It was hard to follow his lectures since he very rarely gave concert examples of how to preform the mathematics.

Lectures should be related with homework and test material. Throughout the class the majority of the class, myself included felt extremely lost. We were given no guidance on where to access resources in order to succeed in the class. We also covered extremely complex topics in a very short period of time which restricted our potential to fully understand and comprehend the material. The pacing of the class, as noted before, was almost unmanageable.

NONE

Post homework solutions since it is crucial for studying for the midterm, spend more time on explaining textbook concepts instead of spending the entire lecture time discussing beyond-the-textbook ideas

The strength also was a weakness since it sometimes confused us with the concept that could have been very simple.

He may put more examples in class so that we can better understand the theories.

Comment

This has been my favorite class at USC by far!

Just because you're tenured doesn't mean you can stop teaching the course material.

Extremely poor teaching skills. He is happy if just one or two kids know what he's saying..

Name of class is a bit confusing

NONE

It would be great if he could speak a little bit more clearly in class. Other than that, he's great.

He jumps too quick to high level knowledge that is not covered effectively in the textbook. So it is hard to follow
