

Precarious Ecologies: Environmental Crisis and the Role of the University

Monday, September 12, 2022

2:00-5:00pm

Doheny Memorial Library 240

In-person event

Reception to follow at the University Club

Please RSVP by 5:00pm Friday, September 9, 2022

This event is co-sponsored by the USC Center on Science, Technology, and Public Life and the USC Center on Latinx and Latin American Studies with support from the Mellon Foundation's Sawyer Seminar Program.

Welcome Remarks:

Dean Amber Miller, USC Dornsife

Introduction:

Juan De Lara, Director of the Center for Latinx and Latin American Studies, Associate Professor of American Studies and Ethnicities, USC

Keynote:

Marta Segura, Director of Climate Emergency Mobilization Office for the City of Los Angeles

Discussant:

Manuel Pastor, Distinguished Professor, Sociology/American Studies & Ethnicity, Turpanjian Chair in Civil Society and Social Change, Director, USC Equity Research Institute

Research Forum:

Andrea Ballester, Director of The Ethnography Studio, Associate Professor of Anthropology, USC

William Deverell, Director of the Institute on California and the West, Professor of History, USC

Jill Johnston, Director of Community Engagement in the Division of Environmental Health, Associate Professor of Population and Public Health Science, USC Keck

Joe Árvai, Director of the Wrigley Institute, Professor of Psychology and Biological Sciences

John Wilson, Founding Director of the USC Spatial Sciences Institute, Professor of Spatial Sciences and Sociology

Moderator:

Andrew Lakoff, Director of the Center on Science, Technology, and Public Life, Professor of Sociology, USC

This event marks the launch of the 2022-23 Mellon Sawyer Seminar Precarious Ecologies: Science and Social Justice in the Production of Environmental Knowledge.