VISS 501  Introduction to Visual Studies: Methods and Debates

Vanessa R. Schwartz, University of Southern California

Wednesday, 2-5pm, Taper 308
Office Hours: Wednesday, 5-6, Taper Hall 336
and by appointment at vschwart@usc.edu

Course Description:

Over the last two decades, Visual Studies has gained wide currency as a field of research and teaching in universities both in the United States and abroad. Scholars from disciplines as diverse as art history, American studies, literature, anthropology, film and media studies, psychology, history, and gender studies have focused attention on both the cultural specificity of vision and on the ever-widening array of images and objects available for viewing.

This course will provide a critical introduction to the history, methods, and central debates within the field. How have scholars and critics taken up — or in some cases dismissed — the study of visual culture and to what ends? What are the limits and possibilities of the interdisciplinary models on offer? We will explore these questions through a sustained engagement with selected texts that are rich in methodological orientation and that address such subjects as definitions of the image, the experience of seeing, the science of vision, constructions of visuality, and the experience and creation of visual objects.

This course is one of two required courses as part of the USC’s Visual Studies Graduate Certificate (VSGC).

Readings and Seminar Participation:

Readings are extensive. Our primary task as individuals is to read with care. As a group, our goal is to engage in a discussion that helps illuminate the readings. Seminar participation will be considered an essential component of the class. All readings will be posted on a shared Dropbox folder, which can be found here: https://www.dropbox.com/scl/fo/lnrc9njbcc4zu01dsyvygj/h?rlkey=9k6jsvi7efk1k4oyt2aytajbn&dl=0. There may also be books you would like to purchase.

Expectations and Requirements: Students are expected to complete all required reading prior to seminar meetings and to discuss the texts and critical issues at hand during each session. Each student must also post a “response” to the week’s readings on the class website by no later than 5 am Wednesday morning, although posts earlier are welcomed. Students are also expected to read each other’s responses before class and thus we may need to adjust the deadline for submission based on the needs of the group. A response can be a critical summary of the readings, a series of questions, complaints, rants. The idea behind them is to ask each student to take some time to reflect on the week’s readings and to share those thoughts with the class before we meet as a starting point for discussion which I will organize and lead.

Final Project:

The final exercise in this class is to make a visual lesson about an image or exhibition about looking or seeing. Your final project is to “visualize” a lesson through PowerPoint, Prezi, Keynote, or an alternative means. Students are asked to reflect upon the specific issue of the production of the image and producers, what images do, questions of looking, circulation, truth, evidence, and knowledge construction relating to vision, visuality, images, seeing, and spectacle. In addition, you are to write a 10–12-page paper, “Visualizing Knowledge,” which reflects on the methods and approaches you used in making your lesson that may or may not have emerged from taking the class. The paper will consider the different “theories and methods” and definitions of Visual Studies encountered in the class and transmitted through your visual presentation of your lesson. In other words, how and why is this an object that relates to a field that might be called “Visual Studies” that is different from how you might have treated this in your home discipline, or is it different at all?

Resources: In preparation for this exercise, please listen to at least two podcasts a week from the BBC Series, “A History of the World in 100 Objects”:
