Out of Site: Survey Science and the Hidden West

EXHIBITION TOUR with CURATORS

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 14

10:30am PST

Autry Museum of the American West

*Limited capacity, RSVP required

The Western landscape is a place where the representation of physical space involves both visualization and manipulation. Technologies originally designed to render places visible and comprehensible often became instruments of invisibility and surveillance, severing western lands from the populations that depend on them. Spanning the mid-19th century to the present, Out of Site was curated by Amy Scott, with William Fox, Britt Salvesen, and Jason Weems, and features 90 artworks, archival materials, and devices.
